Peek at the Week

September 18-24, 2019

Hello pre-k families - It seems hard to believe we are soon approaching our 3rd week of preschool. We will be spending the upcoming week practicing classroom routines and learning some new ones, working to remember our friend's and teacher's names, and continuing to introduce/learn our classroom rules. We will be working hard and having fun!

We will also begin CIA testing next week, which focuses on counting, and shape, color and letter identification/recognition. This testing provides Miss Lindh an understanding of which skills students have when entering preschool and it allows her to plan and create activities specifically tailored to the individual needs of each child throughout the school year

This week we are...

- Learning Friend's names
- Making choices for play time activities
- Waiting our turn
- Practicing classroom rules, routines & expectations
- Beginning CIA testing, starting Monday, September 23

Try it at Home:

- Have your child get ready for the day independently - allow extra time so that you (and your child) do not feel frustrated or rushed
- Help your child practice sitting on the floor "crisscross applesauce" hands in their laps; this will help them to stay within the confines of their own square during our carpet time.
- Go on a shape, color, number or letter hunt - can you find them on a cereal box? A street sign? A nature walk?
- Read to your child, and allow them to read to you (we are learning to "read the pictures" and tell our own stories when reading independently)
